Hydroxyapatite

WHAT IS HYDROXYAPATITE?

Dental enamel is made of up 96% by Hydroxyapatite and the dentin is made of up 70% by Hydroxyapatite

Hydroxyapatite is a natural mineral and represents the main constituent of human bone tissue. Its main function is to bring to the tooth the components lost daily, due to continuous exposure to foods, sugary drinks and to mechanical and corrosive stimuli.

- HYDROXYAPATITE has a rough surface which facilitates its connection to physiological substrates
- Shows higher reactivity (ion release) and surface hydration than stoichiometric HAP

Biomimetic Hap linked to the tooth, performs a function of reservoir and reserve of minerals. It also binds to the tooth with high compatibility at two different levels:

The deposit as a filler of HAP, therefore reduces hypersensitivity, due to

- Erosions due to food and drinks
- Gum recessions
- Brushing abrasions
- Poor oral hygiene
